The Auditorium.

The picture entitled The Lighthouse Keeper's Daughter at the Auditorium the last three days of the present week is certainly a winner. It tells the story of an attempt to sink a ship carrying five million dollars in gold which is frustrated by the daughter of the man who tends the light. The popular Edison reel for the end of this week is a thousand feet of comedy entitled The Uplifting of Mr. Barker. One intensely funny scene is the interior of a cabin on one of the ocean liners showing the effect of a storm on the inexperienced passengers. Other pictures are Why They Fell Out and Vulture Hunting.

There remains but two days to see this week's bill at the Auditorium headed by the wonderful Liva Larsen troupe of four clever acrobats.

BREED THEATER.

"The Northern Schoolmaster," Feature Motion Picture.

Much interest was manifested in the weirdly attractive motion picture of the Ku Klux days in the south, just after the war, now being shown at the Breed theater. The old story of the prejudices of the north and south the prejudices of the north and south is told in a new way and the love affairs of a northern schoolmaster, teaching in the extreme south, for a genuine southern girl, are the prime motives in this picture. A persious fire rescue scene is enacted where the heroine is saved by the hero after a heroine is saved by the hero after a dangerous climb over a burning building, and she is then saved only after chopping a hole in the roof and dragging her out, and descending on a slender rope together. The other fine plctures include Lady Halen's Escapade, A Troublesome Satchel, Every Lass a Queen, Martins Leave Home for a Week Reforming a Husband and Uncle Reuben's Courtship.

Mr. Delaney made a distinct hit with the pretty southern ballad, Ain't Alabama Good Enough for You? and Madame Morelle sings her concert song, Patti's Waits, to the delight of all present.
